It's not difficult to set targets for staff. It is much harder ____ 1 ____ to understand their negative consequences. Most work-related behaviors have multiple components ____ 2 ____ one and the others become distorted.

Travel on a London bus and you'll ____ 3 ____ see how this works with drivers. Watch people get on and show their tickets. Are they carefully inspected? Never. Do people get on without paying? Of course! Are there inspectors to ____ 4 ____ that people have paid? Possibly, but very few. And people who run for the bus? They are ____ 5 ____: How about jumping lights? Buses do so almost as frequently as cyclists.

Why? Because the target is ____ 6 ____ People complained that buses were late and infrequent ____ 7 ____, the number of buses and bus lanes were increased, and drivers were ____ 8 ____ or punished according to the time they took. And drivers hit these targets. But they ____ 9 ____ hit cyclists. If the target was changed to ____ 10 ____ you would have more inspectors and more sensitive pricing. If the criteria on changed to safety, you would get more ____ 11 ____ drivers who obeyed traffic laws. But both these criteria would be at the expense of time.

There is another ____ 12 ____: people became immensely inventive in hitting targets. Have you ____ 13 ____ that you can leave on a flight an hour late but still arrive on time? Tailwinds? Of course not! Airlines have simply changed the time a ____ 14 ____ is meant to take. A one-hour flight is now ballad as a two-hour flight.

The ____ 15 ____ of the story is simple. Most jobs are multidimensional, with multiple criteria. Choose one criterion and you may well 16 others. Everything can be done faster and made cheaper, but there is a ____ 17 _____. Setting targets can and does have unforeseen negative consequences.

This is not an argument against target-setting. But it is an argument for exploring consequences first. All good targets should have multiple criteria ____ 18 ____ critical factors such as time, money, quality and customer feedback. The trick is not only to ____ 19 ____ just one or even two dimensions of the objective, but also to understand how to help people better ____ 20 ____ the objective.

"Reskilling" is something that sounds like a buzzword but is actually a requirement if we plan to have a future in which a lot of would-be workers do not get left behind. We know we are moving into a period where the jobs in demand will change rapidly, as will the requirements of the jobs that remain. Research by the World Economic Forum finds that on average 42 percent of the "core skills" within job roles will change by 2022. That is a very short timeline.

The question of who should pay for reskilling is a thorny one. For individual companies, the temptation is always to let go of workers whose skills are no longer in demand and replace them with those whose skills are. That does not always happen. AT&T is often given as the gold standard of a company that decided to do massive reskilling program rather than go with a fire-and-hire strategy. Other companies had also pledged to create their own plans. When the skills mismatch is in the broader economy, though, the focus usually turns to government to handle. Efforts in Canada and elsewhere have been arguably languid at best, and have given us a situation where we frequently hear of employers begging for workers, even at times and in regions where unemployment is high.

With the pandemic, unemployment is very high indeed. In February, at 3.5 United States were at generational lows and worker shortages were everywhere. As of May, those rates had spiked up to 13.3 per cent and 13.7 per cent, and although many worker shortages had disappeared, not all had done so. In the medical field, to take an obvious example, the pandemic meant that there were still clear shortages of doctors, nurses and other medical personnel.

Of course, it is not like you can take an unemployed waiter and train him to be a doctor in a few weeks. But even if you cannot close that gap, may be you can close others, and doing so would be to the benefit of all concerned. That seems to be the case in Sweden: When forced to furlough 90 percent of their cabin staff, Scandinavian Airlines decided to start up a short retraining program that reskilled the laid-off workers to support hospital staff. The effort was a collective one and involved other companies as well as a Swedish university.

21. Research by the World Economic forum suggests_____.

- A . an urgent demand for new job skills
- B. an increase in full-time employment

22. AT&T is cited to show _____ .

- A . have appeared to be insufficient
- B. have driven up labour costs

- D. have met with fierce opposition

24. We can learn from Paragraph 3 that there was _____ .

- A. a sign of economic recovery

With the global population predicted to hit close to 10 billion by 2050, and forecasts that agricultural production in, some regions will need to nearly double to keep pace, food security is increasingly making headlines. In the UK, it has become a big talking point recently too, for rather particular reason: Brexit.

Brexit is seen by some as an opportunity to reverse a recent trend towards the UK importing food. The country produces only about 60 percent of the food it eats, down from almost three-quarters in the late 1980s. A move back to self-sufficiency, the argument goes, would boost the farming industry, political sovereignty and even the nation's health. Sounds great—but how feasible is this vision?

According to a report on UK food production from the University of Leeds, UK, 85 per cent of the country's total land area is associated with meat and dairy production. That supplies 80 per cent of what is consumed, so even covering the whole country in livestock farms wouldn't allow us to cover all our meat and dairy needs.

There are many caveats to those figures, but they are still grave. To become much more self-sufficient, the UK would need to drastically reduce its consumption of animal foods, and probably also farm more intensively—meaning fewer green fields, and more factory-style production.

But switching to a mainly plant-based diet wouldn't help. There is a good reason why the UK is dominated by animal husbandry: most of its terrain doesn't have the right soil or climate to grow crops on a commercial basis. Just 25 percent of the county's land is suitable for crop-growing, most of which is already occupied by arable fields. Even if we converted all the suitable land to fields of fruit and veg—which would involve taking out all the nature reserves and removing thousands of people from their homes—we would achieve only a 30 percent boost in crop production.

Just 23 percent of the fruit and vegetables consumed in the UK are currently home-grown, so even with the most extreme measures we could meet only 30 percent of our fresh produce needs. That is before we look for the space to grow the grains, sugars, seeds and oils that provide us with the vast bulk of our current calorie intake.

26. Some people argue that food self-sufficient in UK would _____.

- A. be hindered by its population ground
- B. become a priority of government
- C. pose a challenge to its farming industry
- D. contribute to the nation's well-being

27. The report by the university of Leeds shows that in the UK _____.

- A. farmland has been inefficiently utilized

- B. factory-style production needs reforming
- C. most land is used for meat and dairy production
- D. more green fields will be converted for farming

28. Crop-growing in the UK is restricted due to _____.

- A. its farming technology
- B. its dietary tradition
- C. its natural conditions
- D. its commercial interests

29. It can be learned from the last paragraph that British people _____.

- A. rely largely on imports for fresh produce
- B. enjoy a steady rise in fruit consumption
- C. are seeking effective ways to cut calorie intake
- D. are trying to grow new varieties of grains

30. The author's attitude to food self-sufficiency in the UK is _____.

- A. defensive
- B. doubtful
- C. tolerant
- D. optimistic

When Microsoft bought task management app Wunderlist and mobile calendar Sunrise in 2015, it picked up two newcomers that were attracting considerable buzz in Silicon Valley. Microsoft's own Office dominates the market for "productivity" software, but the start-ups represented a new wave of technology designed from the ground up for the smartphone world.

Both apps, however, were later scrapped after Microsoft said it had used their best features in its own products. Their teams of engineers stayed on, making them two of the many acquirers that the biggest companies have used to feed their insatiable hunger for tech talent.

To Microsoft's critics, the fates of Wunderlist and Sunrise are examples of a remorseless drive by Big Tech to chew up any innovative companies that lie in their path. "They bought the seedlings and closed them down," complained Paul Arnold, a partner at San Francisco-based Switch Ventures, putting paid to businesses that might one day turn into competitors. Microsoft declined to comment.

Like other start-up investors, Mr Arnold's own business often depends on selling start-ups to larger tech companies, though he admits to mixed feelings about the result: "I think these things are good for me, if I put my selfish hat on. But are they good for the American economy? I don't know"

The US Federal Trade Commission says it wants to find the answer to that question. This week, it asked the five most valuable US tech companies for information about their many small acquisitions over the past decade. Although only a research project at this stage, the request has raised the prospect of regulators wading into early-stage tech markets that until now have been beyond their reach.

Given their combined market value of more than 5.5tn dollars, rifling through such small deals -many of them much less prominent than Wunderlist and Sunrise might seem beside the point. Between them, the five companies (Apple, Microsoft, Google, Amazon and Facebook) have spent an average of only 3.4bn dollars a year on sub-1bn dollars acquisitions over the past five years a drop in the ocean compared with their massive financial reserves, and the more than$130bn of venture capital that was invested in the US last year.

However, critics say that the big companies use such deals to buy their most threatening potential competitors before their businesses have a chance to gain momentum, in some cases as part of a "buy and kill" tactic to simply close them down.

The phenomenon is not new. Ram Shriram, an early investor in both Google and Amazon, said that the tactic had played a part in the deals that 'shaped the database software market in the1980s. However, speaking at a Department of Justice workshop at Stanford University this week, he claimed that such tactics were not used by big tech companies today.

Others dispute that view, Mark Lemley, a professor at Stanford Law School, called it "patently false", based on the recent pattern of acquisitions "We see Google and Facebook buying up hundreds of businesses and very often shutting them down," he said.

While the five biggest companies have come under the FTC's microscope, companies in all corners of the tech market frequently buy up their most innovative potential competitors at an early stage. Five years ago, for instance, Salesforce raised eyebrows when it paid $390m for RelateIQ, a start-up whose technology was seen as leapfrogging Salesforce itself.

According to Susan Woodward, an economist at Sand Hill Econometrics, Cisco has been the most active buyer of all. Referring to the criticism that companies use such tactics to clear competition out of their core markets, she said “Are there kill zones’ around Cisco too? There’s a lot to study here.”

Chuck Robbins, the networking company’s chief executive flatly denied the suggestion. He pointed to buyers that have built large businesses in Cisco’s shadow, including Juniper and Anista, and added: “We’ve never had a strategy to buy companies just to quell competition.”

Even if big tech companies use their buying power to take out competitors, it has not ended their symbiosis with venture capital investors. Last year saw record levels of start-up financing in the US and Europe, said Ms Woodward. “It tells you that the aggregate level of venture capital is not collapsing because of the ‘kill zones’.”

How the FTC will try to use the information it collects on small tech acquisitions to boost competition is unclear. The regulators will not be able to unwind past deals, according to star up investors, because businesses like these are quickly absorbed into a company’s operations, even when they are not shut down.

Another possibility is that the agency will use what it learns to intervene more actively in future deals. “For dominant players, you could start with a higher standard,” said Prof Lemley, putting more on big companies to prove they are not acting in an anti-competitive way when mopping up small rivals.

Such intervention is not welcomed by investors.

“It could slow down M& A both in number of deals and the speed of a deal,” said Matt McIlwain, a partner at Seattle-based Madrona Venture Group. Given the high risks in buying start-ups, he added, big companies performed an important function in taking “the risk to buy, invest in, integrate and hopefully make successful someday smaller companies”

Christine Tsai, head of 500 Startups, a seed-stage investor, added that start-up founders had many good reasons for going to a larger company, from a “fire sale” of businesses that are foundering. to finding ways to accelerate the growth of their businesses.

31.What is true about Wunderlist and Sunrise after their acquisitions?

We're fairly good at judging people based on first impressions, thin slices of experience ranging from a glimpse of a photo to five-minute interaction, and deliberation can be not only extraneous but intrusive. In one study of the ability she dubbed "thin slicing," the late psychologist Nalini Ambady asked participants to watch silent 10-second video clips of professors and to rate the instructor's overall effectiveness. Their ratings correlated strongly with students end-of-semester ratings. Another set of participants had to count backward from 1,000 by nines as they watched the clips, occupying their conscious working memory. Their ratings were just as accurate, demonstrating the intuitive nature of the social processing.

Critically, another group was asked to spend a minute writing down reasons for their judgment, before giving the rating. Accuracy dropped dramatically. Ambady suspected that deliberation focused them on vivid but misleading cues, such as certain gestures of utterances, rather than letting the complex interplay of subtle signals form a holistic impression. She found similar interference where participants watched 15-second clips of pairs of people and judged whether they were strangers, friends, or dating partners.

Intuition's special powers are unleashed only in certain circumstances. In one study, participants completed a battery of eight tasks, including four that tapped reflective thinking (discerning rules comprehending vocabulary) and four that tapped intuition and creativity (generating new products or figures of speech). Then they rated the degree to which they had used intuition ("gut feelings," "hunches," "my heart"). Use of their gut hurt their performance on the first four tasks, as expected, and helped them on the rest. Sometimes the heart is smarter than the head.

Other research shows we're better at detecting deception and sexual orientation from thin slices when we rely on intuition instead of reflection. "It's as if you're driving a stick shift," says Judith Hall, a psychologist at Northeastern University, "and if you start thinking about it too much, you can't remember what you're doing. But if you go on automatic pilot, you're fine. Much of our social life is like that."

Thinking too much can also harm our ability to form preferences. College students' ratings of strawberry jams and college courses aligned better with experts' opinions when the students weren't asked to analyze their rationale. And people made car-buying decisions that were both objectively better and more personally satisfying when asked to focus on their feelings rather than on details, but only if the decision was complex - when they had a lot of information to process.

36. Nalini Ambady's study deals with ____.

- A. instructor student interaction
- B. the power of people's memory
- C. the reliability of first impressions
- D. people's ability to influence others

37. In Ambady's study, rating accuracy dropped when participants _____.

- A. gave the rating in limited time
- B. focused on specific details
- C. watched shorter video clips
- D. discussed with one another

38. Judith Hall mentions driving to mention that _____.

- A. memory can be selective
- B. reflection can be distracting
- C. social skills must be cultivated
- D. deception is difficult to detect

39. When you are making complex decisions, it is advisable to _____.

- A. follow your feelings
- B. list your preferences
- C. seek expert advice
- D. collect enough data

40. What can we learn from the last paragraph?

- A. Generating new products takes time
- B. Intuition may affect reflective tasks
- C. Vocabulary comprehension needs creativity
- D. Objective thinking may boost intuitiveness

Part B

Directions:

Read the following text and answer the questions by choosing the most suitable subheading from the list A-G for each of the numbered paragraphs (41-45). There are two extra subheadings which you do not need to use. Mark your answers on the ANSWER SHEET. (10 points)

- A.. Stay calm
- B.. Stay humble
- C.. Don't make judgments
- D.. Be realistic about the risks
- E.. Decide whether to wait
- F.. Ask permission to disagree

G.. Identify a shared goal

Your boss proposes a new initiative you think won't work. Your senior colleague outlines a project timeline you think is unrealistic. What do you say when you disagree with someone who has more power than you do? How do you decide whether it's worth speaking up? And if you do, what exactly should you say?

41. _____

After this risk assessment, you may decide it's best to hold off on voicing your opinion. Maybe "you haven't finished thinking the problem through, the whole discussion was a surprise to you, or you want to get a clearer sense of what the group thinks," says Weeks. If you think other people are going to disagree too, you might want to gather your army first. People can contribute experience or information to your thinking - all the things that would make the disagreement stronger or more valid." It's also a good idea to delay the conversation if you are in a meeting or other public space. Discussing the issue in private will make the powerful person feel less threatened.

42. _____

Before you share your thoughts, think about what the powerful person cares about —it may be the credibility of their team or getting a project done on time," says Grenny. You're more likely to be heard if you can connect your disagreement 'to a higher purpose.'" When you do speak up, don't assume the link will be clear. You'll want to state it overtly, contextualizing your statements so that you're seen not as a disagreeable underling but as a colleague who's trying to advance a shared goal. The discussion will then become more like a chess game than a boxing match," says Weeks.

43. _____

This step may sound overly deferential, but, according to Grenny, it's a smart way to give the powerful person psychological safety, and control. You can say something like, I know, we seem to be moving toward a first-quarter commitment here. I have reasons to think that won't work. I'd like to lay out my reasoning. Would that be OK?" This gives the person a choice, "allowing them to verbally opt in," says Grenny. And, assuming they say yes, it will make you feel more confident about voicing your disagreement.

44. _____

You might feel your heart racing or your face turning red, but do whatever you can to remain neutral in both your words and actions. When your body language communicates reluctance or anxiety, it undercuts the message, Weeks says. It sends a mixed message, and your counterpart gets to choose what to read, she explains. Deep breaths can help, as can speaking more slowly and deliberately. When we feel panicky we tend to talk louder and faster. You don't want to be mouse or talk in a whisper, but simply slowing the pace and talking in an even tone helps calm the other person down and does the same for you, says Grenny. It also makes you seem confident, even if you aren't.

45. _____

Emphasize that you're offering your opinion, not "gospel truth," says Grenny. "It may be a well-informed, well-researched opinion, but it's still an opinion, [so] talk tentatively and slightly understate your confidence." Instead of saying something like, "If we set an end-of-quarter deadline, we'll never make it," say, "This is just my opinion, but I don't see how we will make that deadline." Weeks suggests adding a lot of "guiding phrases" like "I'm thinking aloud here." This will leave room "for dialogue. Having asserted your position (as a position, not as a fact), "demonstrate equal curiosity about other views," says Grenny. Remind the person that this is your point of view," and then invite critique. Weeks suggests trying something like, "Tell me where I'm wrong with this." Be genuinely open to hearing other opinions.

Section III Translation

46. Directions:

Translate the following text into Chinese. Write your translation on the ANSWER SHEET. (15 points)

We tend to think that friends and family members are our biggest sources of connection, laughter and warmth. While that may well be true, researchers have also recently found that interacting with strangers actually brings a boost in mood and feelings of belong that we didn't expect.

In our series of studies, researchers instructed Chicago area commuters using public transportation to strike up a conversation with someone near them. On average, participants who followed the instruction felt better than those who had been told to stand or sit in silence. There searchers also argued that when we shy away from casual interaction with strangers, it is often due to a misplaced anxiety that they might not want to talk to us. Much of the time, however, this belief is false. As it turns out, many people are actually perfectly willing to talk—and may even be flattered to receive your attention.

27. 【C】

【解析】细节题

根据题干 report by the University of Leeds 回文定位到第三段“85 percent of the country's total land area is associated with meat and dairy production”，C项是本句的同义改写，为正确答案。

28. 【C】

【解析】细节题

根据题干中的 crop-growing 定位到第五段中“Just 25 percent of the country's land is suitable for crop-growing...”全国只有 25%的土地适合种植农作物...，不难发现英国农作物发展受限的原因是因为其适合性土地占比很少，是自然环境因素原因，C 为正确答案。

29. 【A】

【解析】推理题

根据题干定位到最后一段，文中“英国人食用的 23%的果蔬是本土产出的，但尽管我们用尽所有的方法，我们只能满足我们 30%新鲜农产品需求”，可以得知英国人的果蔬需求不能仅仅依靠国内提供，大部分要依赖于进口，因此 A 为正确答案。

30. 【D】

【解析】态度题

定位到最后一段：尽管我们用尽所有的方法，我们只能满足我们 30%新鲜农产品需求。但是作者话锋一转，“That is before we look for the space to grow...”，意味着我们接下来要为“实现自给自足”要去“寻找（种植）空间来满足我们的卡路里摄入需求”，因此作者的态度更倾向于乐观。

31. 【B】

【解析】细节题。根据题干 Wunderlist and Sunrise 回文定位到第二段 their teams of engineers stayed on, 可见 B 工程师保留下来正解,stay on 是 retain 同义替换。

32. 【C】

【解析】细节题。根据题干 Microsoft's critics 回文定位到第三段 big tech to chew up any innovative companies...可见 C 消除他们潜在竞争对手正解, eliminate 是 chew up 同义替换。

33. 【D】

【解析】细节题。根据题干 Paul Arnold 回文定位到第四段 “I think these things are good for me, if I out my selfish hat on. But are they good for the American economy? I don't know”，可见

Arnold 关心的是小型收购可能会伤害美国的经济，因此 D 为正确答案。

34. 【D】

【解析】细节题。根据题干 The US Federal Trade Commission 回文定位到第五段“The US Federal Trade Commission says it wants to find the answer to that question. This week, it asked the five most valuable US tech companies for information about their many small acquisitions over the past decade.”，“美国联邦贸易委员会表示希望找到这个问题的答案。本周，该机构向美国市值最高的 5 家科技公司询问了它们在过去 10 年进行的许多小型收购的相关信息”，可见，美国联邦贸易委员会打算检查小型收购。因此 D 为正确答案。

35. 【B】

【解析】细节题。根据题干 the five biggest tech companies 回文定位到第六段“the five companies...have spent an average of only $3.4 bn a year on sub-$1 bn acquisitions over the past five years—a drop in the ocean compared with their massive financial reserves, and the more than $130 bn of venture capital that was invested in the US last year”，“过去 5 年，这 5 家公司平均每年仅花费 34 亿美元进行不到 10 亿美元的收购——与它们庞大的财务储备以及去年在美国投资的逾 1300 亿美元风险资本相比，这只是沧海一粟”，可见对于这五个大型科技公司，他们的小型收购带来的财务压力很小，因此 B 为正确答案。

36. 【C】

【解析】细节题

根据题干“Nalini Ambady”回文定位到第一段落中“thin slicing”“薄片信息”；“10 second video clips”“10 秒中的视频片段”，可以得知该实验针对的是上文中“first impression”，因此 C 为正确答案。

37. 【B】

【解析】细节题

根据题干定位到第二段中“Ambady suspected that deliberation focused on vivid but misleading cues, such as certain gestures of utterances, rather than letting the complex interplay of subtle signal form a holistic impression.”可以得知关注是“生动但误导性的线索，如具体手势而不是让复杂的相互作用的微妙的信号形成一个整体印象”，可见关注的是“具体细节”非为“整体”，因此 B 为正确答案。

38. 【B】

【解析】例证题。根据关键词 Judith Hall 的 driving 的例子可以定位到第三段，例子本身不

是答案,一般往上和往下找, we're better at detecting... from thin slices when we rely on intuition instead of reflection 我们更善于发现.....当我们依靠直觉而不是反射的时候。例子本身的意思“这就好像你在开手动挡,如果你开始想太多,你就不记得你在做什么。”但是如果你选择自动驾驶,你就会很好。我们大部分的社交生活都是这样。以上说明反射可能会分散注意力,因此, B 为正确答案。

39. 【A】

【解析】细节题

根据题干定位到倒数第二段“And people made... when asked to focus on their feelings rather than on details but only if the decision was complex”“只有当我们做复杂决定时,我们要关注我们的感觉而不是细节”,因此 A 为正确答案。

40. 【B】

【解析】细节推理题

根据题干定位到最后一段“Use of their gut hurt their performance on the first four tasks, as expected, and helped them on the rest”可以得知使用“直觉”会影响测验,因此 B 为正确答案。

41. 【E】

【解析】

对应段落中的第一句 you may decide it's best to hold off on voicing your opinion 你可能会认为最好还是不要发表自己的意见,和 It's also a good idea to delay the conversation 如果你在一个会议或其他公共场所,推迟谈话也是一个好主意。选项中的 delay 是 hold on 和 delay 的同义替换。因此本段大意为“Decide whether to wait”

42. 【G】

【解析】对应段落中的比较处:“如果你能够把你的不同意的观点与一个‘更高的目标’结合在一起,那么你更容易让别人听见自己的观点。”,且后文中出现了“a shared goal”为原词浮现,因此因此本段大意为“辨别共同的目标”。

43. 【F】

【解析】根据关键句 I have reasons to think that won't work. 以及最后一句关键词 disagreement 分析全段都在探讨如何表达不同观点。

44. 【A】

【解析】

对应段落中“to remain neutral”保持中立;“deep breath”深度呼吸,“talk in even tone”用平和的

语气说，均属于表述“保持冷静”；“feel panicky”感到惊慌失措，则为反义词表述“冷静”，

45. 【B】

【解析】根据关键词 understate your confidence 以及后文论据解释“如果我们设置季度末截止日期，我们永远不能完成。”换成“这仅是我个人观点，我认为我们完成不了。”都是在强调答案保持谦虚。

我们通常认为朋友和家庭成员是我们交流，快乐和温暖的源泉。然而这或许是正确的。但是，最近研究人员也发现与陌生人交流实际上可以改善情绪并找到出人意料的归属感。

在我们的一系列研究中，研究人员建议，芝加哥区域的通勤者可以借助乘坐公共交通工具与身边的人交流。通常来说，那些听从指示的乘客远比那些被告知独自站立或静坐的人感觉要好得多。我们在日常生活之所以羞于与陌生人交流是因为我们不恰当的焦虑感——他们或许不愿意和我们交流。然而，大多数时候，这个想法是错误的。正如实验结果显示，很多人实际上非常乐意交流——甚至有可能因你的关注而感到满足。

From the information given in the chart, we can see the survey on the methods of workout among citizens in certain city. It can be seen that physical exercise alone dominates the most by occupying the 54.3%, next to which is workout with friends at about 47.7%. And 23.9% and 15.8% are attributed to exercises with family and group activities.

There are two primary reasons behind this. On one hand, it is strongly convinced that that is mainly due to the fact that people growingly attach importance to physical health by doing some outdoor exercises, especially when we are all faced with the Covid-19 all over the world and universal sub-health situation. On the other hand, due to the burdensome workload and overwhelming social requirements, it is more common for people to enjoy the carefree time.

Taking all analysis above, we can draw a conclusion that this phenomenon is attributed to the contemporary health condition among people and nowadays social needs. And it is advisable for us to promote health with friends and family to forge closer bound.
